Names of Patterns.

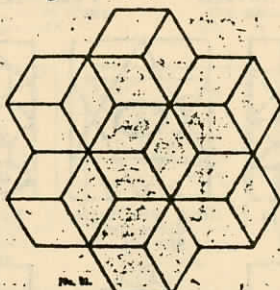

The following Miniature Diagrams can give you but a faint idea of the beauty of these patterns, being here reduced to so small a size, the details are imperfectly brought out. The diagrams which go with the patterns are printed on heavy card board and artistically colored, so as to give some idea how the finished blocks would look, being also suggestive of effective colors to use in making up the blocks; though, of course, the combination of colors can be varied in a hundred ways, to suit individual tastes and fancies.

A LESSON IN EMBROIDERY.

EMBROIDERY, with its fascinating colors and beautiful designs, has become an art which every woman should add to her accomplishments. Not only are many beautiful and useful articles made by the knowledge of it, but as this work allows a large scope for originality, it also brings out and cultivates our artistic talents. In this lesson we will endeavor to make plain the technical part of this art, which consists of the stitches commonly needed, and how to use them, for without a thorough knowledge of this part, it will be impossible to do good work.

The principal stitches employed in Embroidery are the Long and Short Stitch, the Satin Stitch, the Solid Embroidery or Kensington Stitch, the Button Hole Stitch, the French Knot the Kensington Outline Stitch, and Stem Stitch. Besides these there are many other fancy stitches which can easily be learned after becoming perfectly familiar with those principally needed.

The LONG AND SHORT STITCH is used when the work is not entirely filled out, and generally termed half work or tipping. This stitch can not be made perfectly unless the work is stretched on a frame. Begin in the center of the leaf, bringing the needle up on the outside of the outline and work toward the base. The inner edge of the stitches must be of irregular length, and the outer even and solid. See Fig. I.

Fig. I.

SOLID EMBROIDERY OR KENSINGTON STITCH is applied where solid work and shading are required. It is similar to the Long and Short Stitch. In fact the stitch used for the edge is the actual Long and Short Stitch, while the stitches used for filling in are of more even lengths. See Fig. II.

Fig. II.

BUTTON HOLE STITCH is principally used to finish the edge of linens. This is worked in the band without a frame. Hold the linen so the outer edge of the outline is toward you. Work from left to right, making perpendicular stitches and holding the thread so as to form a knot on the outer edge. See Fig. III.

Fig. III.

FRENCH KNOT is used to represent seed, and for the center of some flowers. It is made by drawing the needle through the fabric to the right side of the work at the point where the knot is to be. Hold it in your right hand and with the left take hold of the silk as close to the material as possible, twist it around the needle three or four times, put the needle close to where it was brought up, draw the twisted silk tight and push the needle, holding the silk to prevent it from untwisting until you have drawn the full length of it through. See Fig. IV.

Fig. IV.

SATIN STITCH is employed generally for conventional Embroidery, also for working overturns on flowers and leaves. It is made by carrying the silk across the design, bringing the needle down on the right and up through the left side. The stitches must all be parallel and close together, giving a satin finish when the design is all covered. See Fig. V.

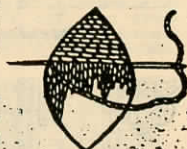

Fig. V.

KENSINGTON OUTLINE STITCH, used for outlining designs and sometimes for underlaying. Bring the needle up on the outline of your work, make a stitch forward on the line, bringing the needle up a little beyond the point where it was pushed through. When working this stitch care should be taken to have them all of uniform size. See Fig. VI.

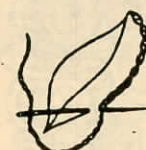

Fig. VI.

STEM STITCH is worked same as the Outline Stitch, this stitch being made shorter and more slant to give it a heavier appearance. See Fig. VII.

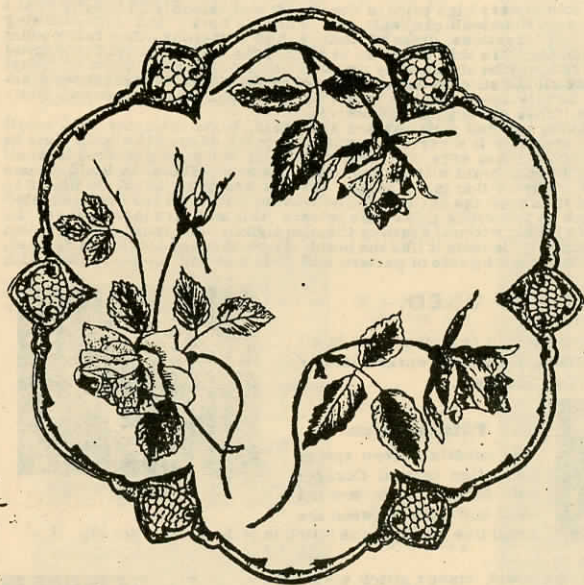

Fig. VII.

After knowing the stitches we must apply them correctly, which means to slant them in the right direction, especially in working leaves and flowers or any design with natural form. When we study nature we find that the grain in leaves and flowers runs toward the heart or center, which is the point where leaf or flower is attached to the stem. To make our work natural and do the better class of Embroidery, we must follow the principal of nature and slant our stitches in the direction to form the grain in flower or leaf. In most flowers the correct slant which the stitch should take, can easily be determined. However, flowers of uncommon form may present some difficulty that may easily be overcome by following this method: Find the center or point where the flower you want to embroider connects with the stem. Draw a circle lightly with lead pencil around the flower, divide the circle into quarters, crossing the lines in the center so that the center of the flower will be on a point with the center of the circle. You can draw more lines and divide the circle into as many parts as seem necessary, for the lines radiating will give you the exact slant which the stitch in this particular flower should take. The overturns or curls on petals and leaves often perplex the beginner. These are worked in Satin Stitch, and should slant to correspond with the grain of the petals or leaves of which they form a part. If any one is in doubt as to the slant, draw on a piece of paper a leaf or petal of the same shape as the one you wish to embroider, but without the overturn. Cut it out and draw lines on both sides in the same slant the stitch on petal should be. Then, by turning the paper leaf or petal so as to form a curl the same as in your work, the lines shown on the turned over part will give you the correct slant for it.

The next to be considered is the color and shading. The color will depend upon the design or kind of flower we wish to embroider, and for this we again look to nature for our guide. The shading, however, is the part which brings out and develops our artistic talent. It is also that part in Embroidery which interests and fascinates, making it not a passing fancy, but an art. Although shading depends upon our talent and study of nature, the following hints will no doubt help. Use double thread on all edges; this will make the outline of your design more distinct, which is very important. For filling in and shading use single thread; it being finer, will enable you to blend the colors more artistically. Furthermore, in working in the different shades be sure to run them well into each other, so as to leave no sign where one begins and the other ends.

To make the foregoing lesson in Embroidery more plain, we illustrate with directions how to work a beautiful linen center-piece of Bridesmaid Rose design. This is one of the most delicate of Roses. Those on the following piece are worked in shades of pink:

Bridesmaid Rose Center-piece.

The first step is to underlay or pad all the overturns with filling cotton, so as to raise them. Then cover in satin stitch with the lightest shade of pink. The flowers are worked solidly in Kensington Stitch. Begin at the edge of a petal and work toward the center. Make each petal distinct. For those in the center use the darker shades of pink and for the petal in the back the medium shades, while the front petals, being more in the light, require the light shades. Work all the petals with light on the edge and dark toward the base. However, that part directly under the overturn, work dark to bring out the shadow, and the rest of the petal light in center and dark again at the base. The calyx is worked in three shades of green with light at the tip and dark toward stem. For the stem use the darker shades of green with a touch of brown, and thorn red and brown for the thorns. The leaves are also worked solid. For some leaves use light green on the edge and dark toward the center; on other leaves reverse and shade according to how the light strikes them. In some have a touch of thorn red or brown. Put the vein in dark green. The fret work in border is worked with Lace Stitch in very light green. This stitch is the same as a Button Hole Stitch, in each succeeding row the stitch is made at uniform distance apart, leaving a space between each stitch. In each succeeding row the stitch is taken in the middle of this space above the thread. The rest of border is worked in Button Hole Stitch with white floss.

The Bridesmaid Center-piece shown in cut is one of the beautiful rose series designs. This series is stamped on best white linen in two sizes—18 and 22 inches—with the following kinds of roses: La France, Jacquemont, American Beauty, Tea, Bridesmaid and Marchal Niel. BATTENBURG OR RENAISSANCE LACE is at present the most popular needle work. Not only is it used for Home Decorations, but it is also the most fashionable Dress Trimming of the day.

The real hand-made Battenburg is sold at very high price in the stores, and can only be bought by the wealthy. However, any one acquainted with the needle can learn how to do this work, and once knowing how, many beautiful articles for household decorations, dress trimmings, and numerous other fancy toilet accessories can be made for a very small outlay. In this work, as in all needle work, the results depend mostly on smooth and even work, which can only be obtained by practice. It is well for beginners to at first select a small pattern and on this practice all the stitches commonly used in the work. When properly acquainted with them, a larger piece may be attempted; and as your interest in the work increases, many ways of arranging and combining these stitches will suggest themselves.

How to prepare the work. After having selected your pattern and braid, baste the latter with small stitches carefully on the pattern and where there is a curve or circle, the outer edge of the braid must be smoothed on the outline of the design, while the inner edge will form little folds which are gathered in small secure together by fine invisible stitches. When filling in the design the stitches must never be drawn so tight as to pull the edge of the braid, and thus spoil the outline. To help avoid this, after the braid is basted on, baste a piece of the common table oil cloth on the wrong side of the pattern, this will give more body to the work and enable you to get the stitches to lie flat without drawing them to tight. Care must also be taken not to catch the stitches in the pattern but only lie upon it like the braid. To remove the lace when finished, cut and pull out all the basting threads on the wrong side of pattern, and your lace will come off intact without any difficulty.

STITCHES COMMONLY USED.

Point de Bruxelles.

This is the main or foundation stitch and is the one most used in all kinds of lace making. It is a simple buttonhole stitch, worked loosely back and forth, forming rows of even loops. See Fig. I.

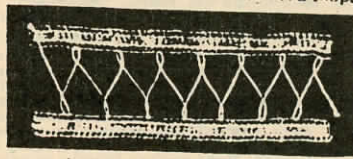

Fig. II.

Bar Stitch.—Secure your thread to the braid, make a stitch across catching the braid opposite and then twist or overcast the stitch and carry the thread back to the starting point. This makes it look like cord. A very pretty effect is gained by covering the cross thread with Button hole stitch instead of twisting it. See Fig. III.

Fig. IV.

Point d'Espagne.

of space we can only illustrate a few. You will find under each design and opposite each pattern listed the price without and with material to work it. Also the sizes in which each design can be had. The selection of material to work our designs is done by skilled lace makers, and the proper amount and kind of braid, thread and other requirements needed are sent with the pattern when ordered at prices given. As the beginners in ordering patterns to order material to work it at the same time, thus having the right material selected by persons experienced in lace making.

Twisted Stitch.

Is used in narrow spaces and often termed Connection Stitch. It is worked back and forth between the braid like Herringbone Stitch in embroidery. See Fig. II.

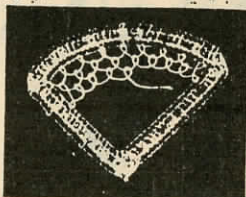

Fig. I.

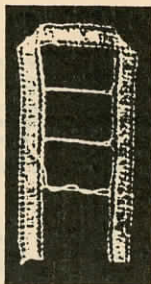

Fig. III.

Wheel Stitch.—Is made by a number of twisted threads crossing each other in the center, so as to form an uneven number of Spokes. The center is then worked around with the thread over and under the spokes same as in darning, and is repeated several times according to the size of the wheel. See Fig. VII.

Point d'Anvers.

This is made by twisting the thread in returning through the buttonhole stitch.

See Fig. V.

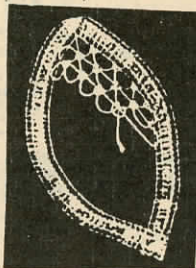

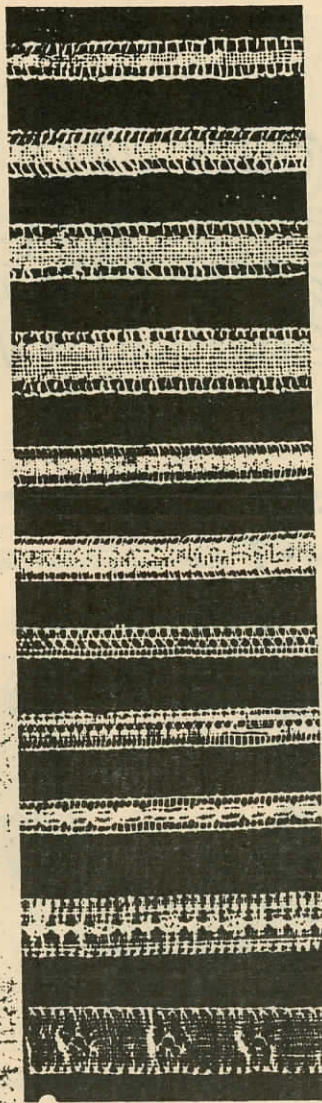

Fig. VI.

If you are interested in needlework, don't fail to send for this new stamping outfit. It certainly will please you, for it contains only new and choice designs. We have included several large and small alphabets, script and text letter; and borders and center pieces; always having regard in the selection of designs, to their large size and usefulness, rather than endeavor to get up an outfit with a long list of designs, but of so small a size as to render them generally valueless.
