

By KEN KLING

Nancy Page

The Nancy Page Club Decides on Year's Program

BY FLORENCE LA GANKE.

The first fall meeting of the Nancy Page club met at Nancy's home. They enthused over Peter Page, Jr., and over Nancy herself. She was looking well and feeling even better, she told them. The question of the year's program came up for discussion. Should they go on with the early homes in America? There was not a dissenting vote. That was settled. Then came refreshments and roll call. Roll call had been delayed because each one was to tell what antique she had acquired during the summer. For refreshments, Nancy served caraway seed pound cake, raspberry shrub and preserved ginger. She had made the shrub and cake but purchased the ginger.

One woman drew a picture of her find—a real four poster with carved posts, holding the tattered fragments of the old canopy. "And what do you think, I was able to match the material. So I am having a new one made just like the one which was on when I found it." Another woman described a seatless ladderback chair which she had found. She was having it repaired with a rush seat and would show it to them when the club met at her home.

Lustre tea sets, old clocks with wooden works, silhouettes, chests of drawers, old books were other finds. Nancy answered last. "I have the newest and the oldest," she said. "Peter Page, Jr., and mother love."

(Copyright, 1928.)

BLEM
ARDS

n' at Isle;
te; It's

f Belle Isle,
as to which
s shall con-
council at-

g.
parks and
anning two s for a new

TODAY'S CROSS WORD PUZZLE

