ishings, early American in character, there is no charming as old pine, and if it can be arranged the accompanying illustration there is every reason m will have a delightful atmosphere.

the picture you will notice that a special panel at the picture may be centered in it. This does ness that might be occasioned by having to place the picture between two narrow panels. The two oblong ones below give balance to the arrangement.

And isn't the window just all one could possibly expect in a sunny, cheery dining room? With one wide window in the center and two narrow ones on each side, it is impossible to use three pairs of glass curtains so just single ones have been used at the end windows. These are made of sheer cotton net and for the overdraperies linen with a green ground has been selected.

Although there is much said about not mixing woods, one can really put pine, cherry and mahogany or walnut together and still have a room that is charming, for if the pieces are old their charm will make them agreeable.

For the floor covering, either a hooked or braided rug would be appropriate and very pleasing, while the covering for the chairs may be of damask. Of course, these chairs being in the Chippendale style really do seem a bit formal for the table with which they are used, but there is always the chance of changing this piece to one of Sheraton style.

If the table is to stand as is, however, the chairs most appropriate for it would be Hitchcock, Windsor or ladderback and cushions might be provided for these and covered with the drapery material.

For the serving table or sideboard there might be another drop-quilt as I have started one and cannot find the same shade of blue as I have already used? If I don't find it I will have to start my quilt all over again; and I certainly hate to do that. I am making it of blue and white broadcloth.

I have only six more plates to put on the background and then I will

Horoscope Quilt Pattern No. 37

AND now pattern No. 37 of this very interesting Horoscope Quilt is ready for you. How are you getting along with your quilt, and how much longer do you think it will be before you have finished it? Please write to the Corner so that it will be possible to set a definite date for the Contest.

This is very important and if you will just drop a card or a little note when you send for the pattern it will be greatly appreciated.

have my Dresden Plate quilt pretty well along. I want to get it quilted as soon as possible.

One of the tubes on our radio burned out so I did not hear the Quilt Club Corner on Wednesday and missed it very much.

I want to start on my Trip Around the World soon, as I like pretty quilts so much.

I certainly hope that you will be able to match the material you are using in your quilt for it would be very discouraging to have to start it all over again. That just shows that it is not safe to start a quilt without a sufficient amount of material for matching is almost impossible after a few weeks or months have passed. I do hope you will like your Trip Around the World. Drop the Corner another little note soon, please.

Chicken pie is delicious for supper, dinner or luncheon. A variety of seasonings, such as green peppers, parsley, onion and pimento improve the flavor.
