Club Corner members much happiness on Easter day.

MRS. CATHERINE WATKINS, 137½ Avalon avenue, Highland Park, would like to know if there is a pattern or any special way of quilting the Lenox Plate. She has 20 blocks pieced and it is very lovely. She is putting a yellow center and yellow bias braid or, rather, binding around the plates. Now she would appreciate suggestions as to the design for quilting, so will some of you be kind enough to drop her a few lines and help her with this problem? She has attended three Detroit News quilt shows and saw some very lovely Lenox Plates there. She is 73 years old and greatly interested in quilt-making.

We only wish that Mrs. Watkins could drop in on us some Friday for I am sure she would enjoy every minute with all of you. Don't you? By the way, there will be no meeting tomorrow because of Good Friday services. Will see you again on March 22.

Twin-Star Quilts Given to Pastor and His Wife

By EDITH B. CRUMB

Quilt Club Corner Editor, The Detroit News

WHEN the members of the Workmore Club of St. James Methodist Church, Harlowe avenue, Detroit, found out that not only their pastor, Reverend William MacClenthen was to have a 78th birthday but that his wife would celebrate the same number of years within a month of the date of his, they planned a real celebration.

This included the meeting of the Workmores, and members of the Ladies Aid at the home of the pastor 18767 Archdale avenue, for a social afternoon. And to top it all off, a pair of quilts was presented to these two celebrators. These quilts are in a large pattern known as the Friendship Star in a variety of colored prints, the center of each star having the autograph of one of the members of the congregation, 44 names in all. The borders are orchid and all work on the quilts has been done by hand; and not only did those who worked on them enjoy making them but they also enjoyed thinking about what a surprise it would be to Reverend and Mrs. MacClenthen to receive them, and it certainly was.

NOT only have these two happy people celebrated their 78th birthdays but just recently they had a 56th wedding anniversary. The presentation of the quilts was made by Mrs. Donald MacDonald, chairman of the Workmore Club, assisted by Mrs. Bernard Beck, president of the Ladies' Aid Society. Mrs. Lillian Zegalia has written to tell us that our shut-in friend, Mrs. Victoria Allor, 1089 Lakeview avenue, Detroit, is very ill and she thought that perhaps some of the Quilt Club Corner members would like to send a card to her. Mrs. Selma Costa, 24845 Tuscany avenue, Detroit, has sent a very pretty card to wish all of the Quilt ner while I drive for my husband. They both want to do it and there is another argument about who did it the last time. There is also an argument as to which twin may set the dishes on the table. Perhaps I am too serious; neither my husband nor myself play enough, but we were unable to have toys when we were children and we never learned how to play. We have made the mistake of getting for our children everything that we wanted for ourselves.

They have lovely doll clothes, coats, fur-trimmed hats and sleepers—things that other children delight in—yet their belongings are always on the floor. They are inclined to be selfish and look out for one another. Can these children be trained to be good housekeepers before they have homes of their own to keep?
F. B.

Begin to turn over to the three girls the responsibility of their personal care and their belongings. They should take their daily baths without being reminded, they should care for their belongings without being told to do so. They should make their beds, hang up their clothing, sew on their own buttons and do their personal darning. The home tasks which they all wish to do should be scheduled
