AMERICAN QUILT STUDY GROUP

AQSG's goal is to develop a responsible and accurate body of information about quilts and their makers. A reliable history of quiltmaking provides insights into the lives and times of quiltmakers, and connects women with their heritage and their place in creative art.

We welcome all persons interested in the history of quiltmaking. Our members include quilt lovers, traditional and contemporary quilt artists, dealers, collectors, researchers, authors, museum curators, students of women's studies, and folklorists.

Discover the thrill of dating your grandmother's quilt from its fabrics, or of tracing the great quilt you bought at a flea market back to its maker.

Membership in AQSG opens the door to a wonderful network of people who are passionate about quilts and whose interests range across every level of quilting.

The American Quilt Study Group is dedicated to preserving the story of quiltmaking — past, present, and future. We invite you to join our ranks!

"No other group has done as much as AQSG to document and preserve America's quilt history. If you only support one quilt organization, this is the one!"

—Julie Silber, Quilt Curator, Lecturer

"The American Quilt Study Group has maintained its commitment to sound and significant quilt scholarship. Its annual journal, Uncoverings, is a must for those seriously interested in the subject."

—Jonathan Holstein, Quilt Historian, Author
