the American Quilt Study Group

Edited by Virginia Gunn

Authors and Editor

Barbara Carow worked as an Adult Services librarian before earning her M.F.A. in Surface Design, with a thesis on "Image and Issue: Beyond the Studio Quilt." She spends time on quilting, writing, teaching, and travel, and studies the stages of women's lives and the creative process. Her profiles of quilt artists have appeared in Quilting International, Bead & Button, Art/Quilt Magazine, and Quilter's Gallery. She is an artist member of Studio Art Quilt Associates and newsletter editor for The Artful Hands Guild.

Catherine A. Cerny, Ph.D., did her graduate work at the University of Minnesota. She is currently an assistant professor in apparel design at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. With research interest in women's aesthetics and cultural analysis, she has published several articles on contemporary quilting. She oversaw the documentation of quilt and quiltmaker histories for the Rhode Island Quilt Documentation project and will author a chapter in the Rhode Island book.

Gayle R. Davis, Ph.D., did her doctoral work in American Studies at Michigan State University. She is Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs and Associate Professor in the Center for Women's Studies at Wichita State University. Interested in the influence of gender on art and culture, she teaches courses in women's history, the history of modern art, and social movement theory. Gayle served as a consultant for the Kansas Quilt Project and wrote a chapter for Kansas Quilts and Quilters.

Sara Reimer Farley is an independent researcher/scholar with a M.A. in English. She has taught composition and English as a Second Language to both high school and college students. Raised in a Mennonite community, Sara's current research focuses on quilters in Halstead, Kansas, and the influence of church and social history on their work. She assisted with the Kansas Quilt Project and wrote the chapter on "The Developing Mennonite Quilting Tradition" in Kansas Quilts and Quilters.

Virginia Gunn, Ph.D., the editor of Uncoverings, served on the board of AQSG from 1985 to 1994. She is a professor of clothing, textiles, and interiors and the director of graduate studies for the School of Home Economics and Family Ecology at the University of Akron in Ohio. She teaches courses on the history of costume, the history of interior design, and material culture studies. Her research focuses on women's history and on nineteenth-century American textiles, costume, and decorative arts.

Jill Hemming lives in Chapel Hill, North Carolina, where she works as a freelance folklorist. Her interest in quilting began while completing fieldwork with Native American tribes in eastern North Carolina and with Mormon communities in Idaho. Cultural documentation and public sector advocacy are skills she learned while completing a graduate degree in folklore at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Jill believes in a community-based approach which recognizes and promotes living traditions.

Nancy Hornback earned a B.A. in Sociology from the University of San Diego and a M.A. in Liberal Studies from Wichita State University. For her master's project she served as curator and wrote the catalog for the exhibit Quilts in Red and Green. Nancy was co-founder, board member, and quilt discovery day coordinator of the Kansas Quilt Project and authored a chapter for Kansas Quilts and Quilters. She has served on the board of the American Quilt Study Group since 1992.

Ruth Rhoades holds a B.S. in Education from Kent State University and a M.S. in Business Administration from Wayne State University. She taught math and business at the high school level. Now retired, Ruth focuses on researching old fabrics. She has been president of three guilds in three different states. She gives programs, teaches workshops, enters quilts in juried shows, and volunteers at quilting events. In 1991, she started the R & R Quilter's Retreat.

Lorre M. Weidlich, Ph.D., is a folklorist who did her undergraduate work at the University of Michigan and her graduate work at the University of Texas at Austin. She has moved in the quilt world for twenty-five years as a designer, teacher, judge, lecturer, guild member and officer. Lorre's primary research interest is contemporary quilt culture. She has published in both academic journals and quilt periodicals. In her non-quilting and non-scholarly life, she is co-owner of a computer software company.

Loretta G. Hammonds Woodard holds a B.S. in Fashion Design and a M.A. in East Asian History from the University of Hawaii. She has served as a museum curator, registrar, and collections manager at the Mission Houses Museum and Hawaii's Plantation Village. She is now a full-time researcher specializing in Hawaiian quilting traditions. Laurie has served on the board of directors of the Hawaiian Quilt Research Project since its formation in 1990.
